

Project Overview

- 1999, Clark County and the City of Vancouver jointly purchased a 38.67-acre area at 12603 Northeast 72nd Ave. The purpose was to establish a Vancouver fire station on 5.67 acres and a county park on the remaining 33 acres. Of those 33 acres, 16.18 acres will be used for park development and the remaining 16.82 acres will remain in its natural state.
- 2005 - voters approved the Metropolitan Parks District Levy for dedicated funding to construct 35 new parks. A number of sports fields and new trails were also included in the tax levy. To date, 31 parks have been completed and Curtin Creek Community Park will be the 32nd.
- 2016 - the Gaddis Wetlands Natural Area, a 49-acre wetland mitigation site, was constructed southeast of the site and extends onto the eastern portion of the property.
- November 2019 an open house was held, which was attended by more than 100 community members, to collect input from the community on the make up of the park. Community outreach also included individual stakeholder meetings with various sports clubs and an online survey.
- Concept plans were presented to the Parks Advisory Board in October and November 2019 and again in February 2020. A preferred master plan was approved and recommended to proceed to the County Council for adoption.
- 2020-2021 – Project was placed temporarily on hold as a result of the COVID pandemic.
- June 2021 – Adoption of the master plan by the County Council
